Acknowledgment

The editors wish to express their appreciation to the following photography studios and student photographers who so generously made pictures available for use in this Year Book: Mr. George Henzel, for the pictures of most of the athletic and musical groups; Mr. Will Plouffe, for the pictures of the cheer leaders and the ski team; Americo Contenta '48, for the class room scenes and the football, basketball and operetta pictures; John Stebbins '48, for the picture of the baseball game, the Motion Picture Club and Barbara Komuniecki; and all the students who contributed snapshots for the composite pictures.

Marion Frances Ransford

October 12, 1929—December 13, 1946

Pittsfield High School, Class of 1947

*"Shall claim of death cause us to grieve,
And make our courage faint or fall?
Nay, let us faith and hope receive—
The rose still grows beyond the wall."*

Dedication

WE, the Class of 1947, lovingly dedicate this year book, "Purple Shadows", to our former classmate, Marion F. Ransford, who, because of her brilliant intellect and radiant personality, will live forever in our memories.

Alma Mater

GUARDIAN ELM TREES CAST THEIR SHADOWS
O'ER THY IVIED WALLS;

SONS AND DAUGHTERS EVER LOYAL
THROUGH THY HONORED HALLS.

PITTSFIELD H.S., PITTSFIELD H.S.,

ALMA MATER DEAR,
HELP US TO PRESERVE THY HONOR
THROUGH EACH COMING YEAR.

GREAT HAS BEEN THY FORMER RECORD, GREATER WILL IT BE,

AS THE FUTURE GENERATIONS
SING THEIR PRAISE TO THEE.

PROUD ARE WE WHO THRU THY PORTALS
INTO LIFE DO PASS;

HELP US EVER TO BE WORTHY,
EACH AND EVERY CLASS.

Foreword

AS the sun is beginning to set on our carefree high school days, the melodious strains of our Alma Mater song echo more and more insistently in our minds. "Guardian elm trees cast their shadows," "Proud are we who through thy portals"—these are the familiar phrases, the stirring words, which have accompanied us through three happy, eventful years; and it is only natural that they be the inspiration for our year book theme. It is our sincere hope that, in these pages, the sunlight of those happy days will filter through the "Purple Shadows"; and we shall live again in golden memories the days we spent together.

Class Room Reflections

ENGLISH—English is like the North star, which is fixed; everything else revolves around it. The seniors, inspired by Maurice Evans, try their hand at "Hamlet".

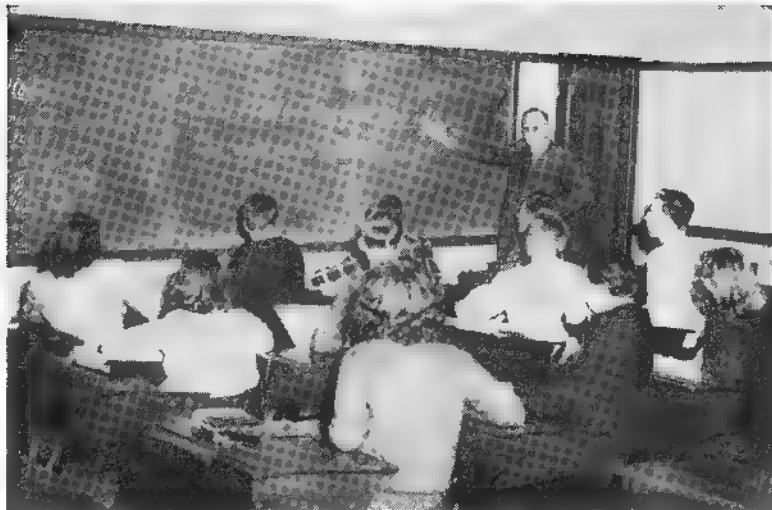

HISTORY—"All learners, all inquiring minds of every order are gathered round her footstool, reverently pondering her lessons as the true basis of wisdom."

LATIN—Aeneas sails the seas once more.

GERMAN—To know the language of a country is to know her people.

FRENCH—Common things said uncommonly often prove more effective.

SPANISH Ella estudiaba, pero no aprendía bien las lecciones.

SENIOR MATH Brain factory!

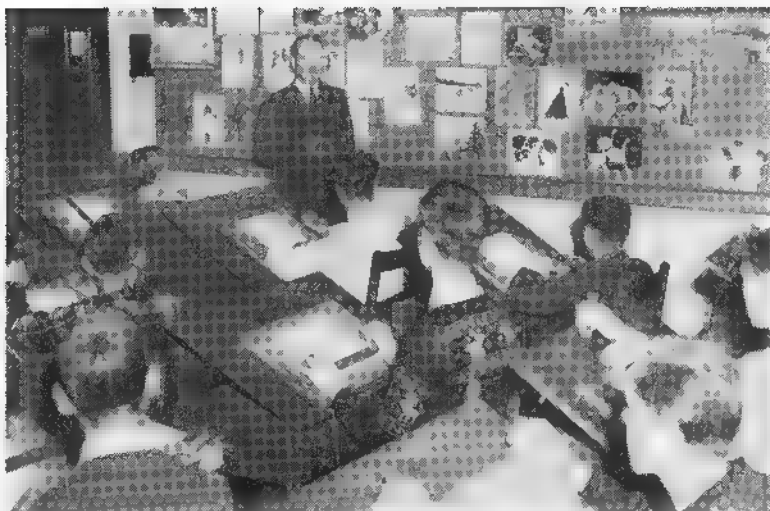

CHEMISTRY—Alas—the answer to that noisome odor? Hydrogen-sulfide!

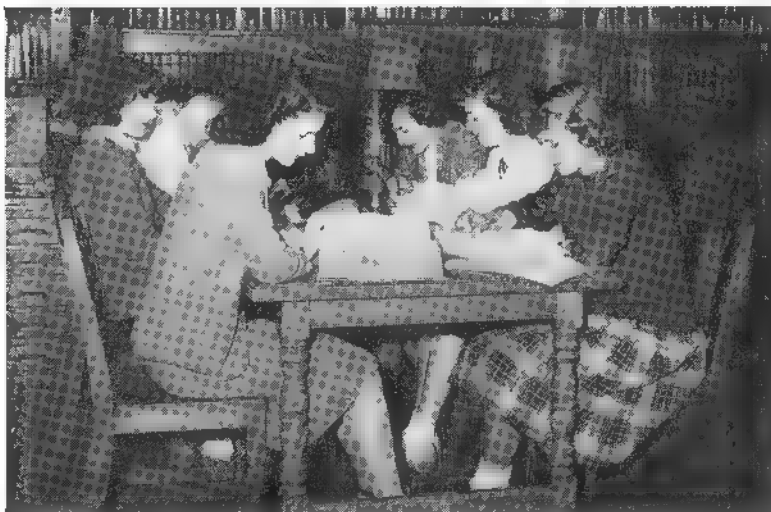

PROBLEMS OF DEMOCRACY—
“We can truly express ourselves only as we can express our unity”

ART—These artists have steady drill in studying and reproducing art in their own individual style.

HARMONY—Here, Mr. Gorman pours forth the fullness of his experience and the perfection of his art.

LIBRARY "Hic habitat Felicitas."

OFFICE PRACTICE—Practice makes perfect.

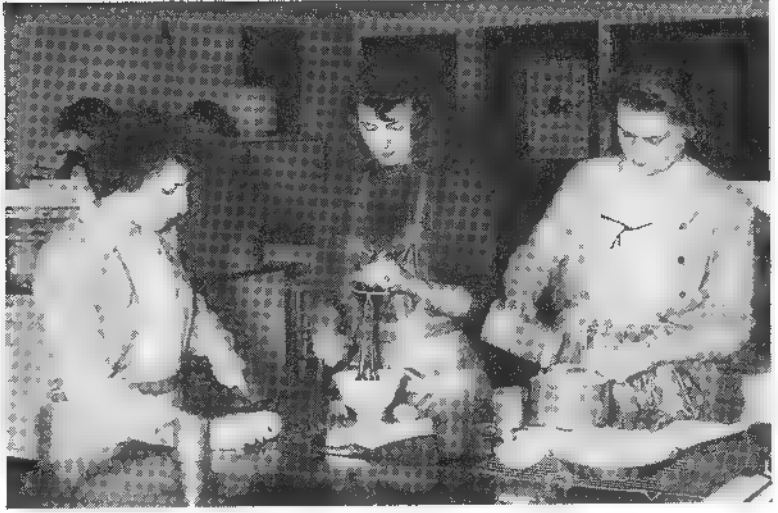

TYPING James quickly gained favor by winning six prizes.

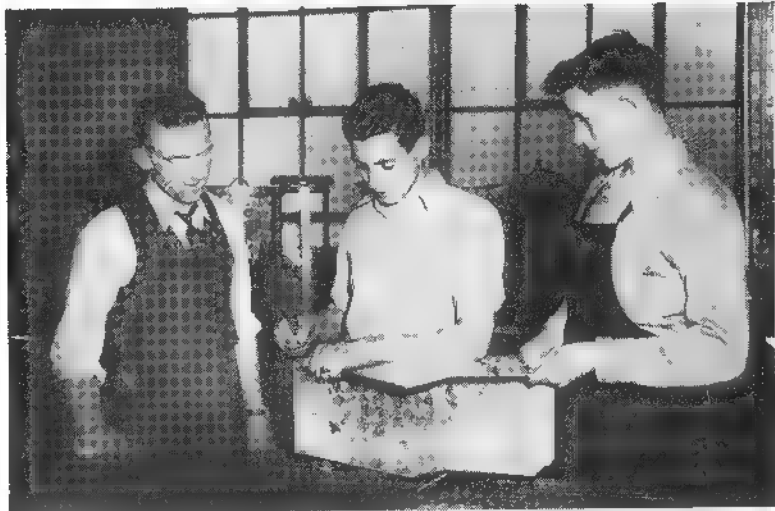

RETAIL SALES—Sing a song of customers, satisfied and gay, Courtesy and knowledge in selling keeps them that way!

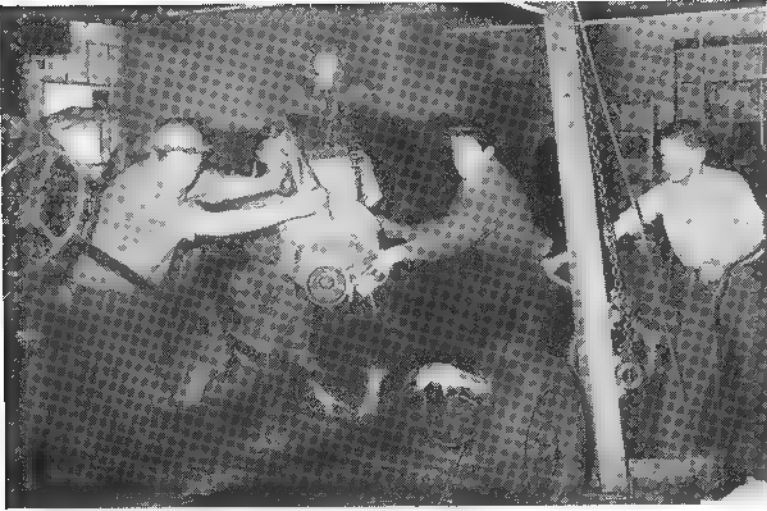

COOKING—Flour + butter + sugar
—The way to a man's heart!

SEWING—Deft fingers create the styles of tomorrow.

SHEET METAL—A little something made by one's own self gives a joy twofold.

AUTO BODY—"We put them together"

And make the old car look like new.

BLUE PRINTING—Here, a little idea may go a long way.

PRINTING—The answer to popular education!

HONOR STUDY HALL—Here we stand trial.

CAFETERIA—Thundering herds of hungry humanity.

THE STUDENT'S PEN The voice of Democracy.

PURPLE SHADOWS—Putting the Year Book together.

MOTION PICTURE CLUB—Fans of the silver screen.

CAMERA CLUB—Properly mixed solutions result in good prints.

BOYS' GYM—Grunt and groan as the weight lifters moan! Ughh!

GIRLS' GYM—"Wheet." A foul shot for Barnes!

Framing Fathers

(Maplewood Institute Prize Essay)

By Claire McEachron

THE "Fathers" of the Constitution, perhaps the ablest and most brilliant men of their time, met to perform the hardest task ever set before a single group of men. Uniting thirteen young and stubborn colonies into one nation was a ticklish job desired by no one. The first attempt to unite the colonies had proved a failure. The laws and rulings of the Continental Congress were either ignored or scoffed at. In fact, self-respecting men refused to attend the meetings of the Congress. It became evident that unless something was done at once the colonies would be separated indefinitely.

In May, 1787, fifty-five delegates met in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, to revise the Articles of Confederation. After some debate, it became obvious that it would be simpler to draw up an entirely new constitution. The "Fathers" spent the long summer months in heated debate and finally emerged successful in September with a new constitution.

Most famous among these "Fathers" were George Washington, who became our first President; James Madison, called "the Father of the Constitution" because of his extensive knowledge of governments; Benjamin Franklin, most widely known American; and Alexander Hamilton, who became our first Secretary of the Treasury.

George Washington, with the consent of all, was chosen to preside over the convention. He was born at Westmoreland County, Virginia, of well-to-do parents. His family later moved to Stafford County, to an estate on the Rappahannock River nearly opposite Fredricksburg. Most of the stories concerning the boyhood of Washington have no foundation in fact. Although he was a truthful lad, there is no evidence to support the tale that he once cut down a cherry tree. His cosmopolitan half-brother, Laurence, took considerable interest in him and gave him his first job. At first, an effort was made to obtain a place for Washington on a merchant ship, but since no opening was available, he went back to his studies, later becoming a surveyor.

When Governor Dinwiddie wanted a man to undertake the dangerous mission of warning the French not to trespass on English territory, his choice fell upon George Washington, who, through Laurence's influence, had been recently appointed adjutant-general. Thus began his military career. He was with General Braddock when the Britisher was mortally wounded at Fort Duquesne. It was Washington who commanded the American forces at Trenton and Yorktown. Washington has gone down in history as one of the world's greatest military strategists. He had the hopeless task of organizing farmers, shopkeepers, blacksmiths, and men of all walks of life, into one co-ordinating and co-operating body. Much of this he had to do alone. The men were always quarreling, complaining, and deserting. Through it all rode the chief, calm, patient, and judicial. This was the man whose calibre had been tested in war and peace, a man whose character had been tried and who had come through victorious, who became chairman of the Constitutional Convention.

The assistance of Washington at the convention was sorely needed. His patience and tact soothed many a heated delegate. After the constitution was drafted, he worked constantly to get it ratified. He wrote letters to important people to gain their support and to arouse public opinion in its favor. He gave his all to his country, and it is only fitting that he be listed first among the Fathers of the Constitution.

James Madison, though a lesser man than Washington, ranks high upon the list of great men. A learned scholar, he contributed much to the Constitutional Convention.

Madison was born in Port Conway, Virginia. He attended the College of New Jersey and studied much about ancient governments. He became interested in constitutional law and, in 1774, at the age of twenty-three, he accepted his first political appointment. From this time on, he was almost constantly in public life. In 1787, he was chosen as a delegate from Virginia to the Constitutional Convention. There he rendered such service that he became famous at the time as the "Father of the Constitution." He originated the Virginia Plan, which, although it was defeated, was instrumental in persuading the delegates from the smaller states to accept the idea of representation by population for the House of Representatives. In addition to his other work at the convention, Madison took notes on the debates, notes which proved to be invaluable records for history. The character of Madison is noteworthy. He was prudent, acute, and statesmanlike. Through his efforts, combined with those of the other delegates, the Constitution was drawn up, ratified, and successfully put into operation.

Benjamin Franklin was perhaps the most versatile of the framers of the Constitution. He was a scientist, author, statesman, philosopher, printer, inventor, diplomat, and humorist. George Washington summarized Franklin's character in a letter to the great man himself: "If to be venerated for benevolence, if to be admired for talents, if to be esteemed for patriotism, if to be beloved for philanthropy, can gratify the human mind, you must have the pleasing consolation to know you have not lived in vain."

Franklin spent his long life in the service of his country and the common man. His tact and common sense dissipated many convention storms, and, next to Washington, he was the most influential man in the gathering. Since he was greatly respected by the nations of the world, his presence at the convention enhanced the new constitution in their eyes.

Alexander Hamilton was perhaps the most brilliant of all who attended the convention. He was a definite asset to the framers of the Constitution. As a delegate from New York, he played an important part in securing New York State's vote for ratification. He traveled over his state, talking and writing about the Constitution. In later life, his fervor for what he considered right gained him many enemies, and his brilliant, but short career ended in a duel, in which he was slain.

These men, Washington, Madison, Franklin and Hamilton, are only a few of the many who did so much that our country might survive. They were the outstanding men of their day. They gave their time, influence, and labor to an enterprise which seemed to every one a lost cause. Yet it meant much to them and they were determined to make those weak and selfish thirteen colonies into a united democracy. Each delegate came from a state whose interests were different from those of its neighbor. Yet these delegates were able to compromise their differences and to establish a firm foundation of government with an intricate check-and-balance system which has stood the test of time.

The world today should look back to the black days of 1783 and renew its faith and hope in the success of the United Nations which is, perhaps, going through an experience similar to that of the thirteen colonies. Out of those black days rose a new nation called the United States of America.

The Rights We Defend

(American Legion Prize Essay)

By Donald Debacher

A WAR correspondent, upon querying a foreigner as to the actual reason America entered the recent World War, was startled by this statement: "You Americans went to war only because you were afraid you would lose your investments in allied bonds. In fact, America has always fought for power and wealth and land. You never take up arms for decent principles." How utterly wrong were those twisted and malignant thoughts that had been instilled in the mind of a human being who had been subjected to the iron hand of a dictatorship. The young men and women who gave their lives in the war just ended could probably answer this acrimony better than we. But since they are not here, let us endeavor to clarify the rights they defended.

We, in the United States, know that America, with her invaluable heritage to her citizens, was not accomplished in a day. It was purchased by the blood of our forefathers, cultivated by the magnificent leadership of our statesmen, and today is enjoyed by the privileged people whom God saw fit to place upon our wonderful nation. This American way of life, that we often take for granted, has not a worthy rival in all the world, let alone an equal. Does it not seem probable then, in the face of these facts, that America, with the very essence of her greatness threatened, should take up arms to suppress the opposition?

We in America have so much to protect against those who seek to destroy us. I thank God that the abounding rights and privileges of Americans have never been taken from them. I thank God for each and every blessing he has bestowed upon you and me.

I thank Him that I was not born into a caste system, and that I have not inherited any aristocratic rank.

I thank God that I am able to attend a free American school and share in the intellectual and cultural heritage of my forefathers; that this school holds dances and banquets and programs from which I am not excluded because of my race, color, or creed.

I thank God that I may select a job of my own free will; one which I shall enjoy and that I do not have to take up simply because of tradition. I know that I shall be receiving the highest wages paid for my type of work in any country in the world.

I thank God that I shall be given the greatest of all democratic privileges, the right to vote, and that, in this way, I may run my government for the amelioration of myself and fellow Americans. I hope that, when I am old enough to exercise this privilege, I shall never forget that, "the wide world has not the wealth to buy the power in my right hand."

I thank God for the sacred freedoms protected in the Bill of Rights; for freedom of religion, that every man may choose his path of faith as his conscience guides him; that he has the right to worship where he pleases. This is important to man, for "God and Country" are the two most influential things in his life, and he cannot honor one without honoring the other. If a man is a true member of his church, whatever the denomination, he will be a better citizen for it.

I thank God for the freedom of speech that I may express openly my personal views and ideas on any subject and know that my opinions need not conform with those of my neighbor. In this modern age when freedom of speech is greatly enhanced by the use of radio, this privilege is, indeed, a powerful factor in the enlightenment and formation of public opinion.

I thank God for the freedom of the press, liberalized as in no other land. The press is equally important because its wide distribution encompasses a vast audience and brings them a more detailed account of current events.

I thank God for the right of peaceful assembly where I may discuss with my fellows the difficulties which perplex me, and for the right to petition my government to improve conditions that I deem unsatisfactory.

These are the rights that have been defended for you and me. But the individual who willingly donned the uniform of Uncle Sam left behind him, not merely a document guaranteeing his rights, but rather a community wherein these prized privileges were personified by everyday living. To him it meant a home with his mother and father, "kid" sisters and brothers; the corner variety store, where the "fellas" gathered at almost any time of the day; his girl—"The best kid you ever met," he'd always tell you; the theater that he attended every Friday night, and the roller skating rink on the other side of town; the dances held at the "Y" each Saturday, and those special formal dances that took hours to prepare for; the long walks he took into the surrounding countryside; the public beach where he acquired his tan each summer; the picnics at the State Forest on the Fourth, and the delicious lunches that Mother put up, especially her chocolate cake. These things represent a material form of the rights embodied in the high-sounding phrases of the Constitution he struggled with in high school.

It is unfortunate that all of us could not be transported to a foreign country that has been ravished by the horrors of modern warfare, so that the blessings that abound in America, blessings which most of us accept so lightly, would be treasured as the priceless prerogatives they actually are.

In a small way we all must have experienced the dawning revelation of what it means to be an American. To me this realization of what a wonderful place America is came at an odd moment. It was at a football game. I had just run out onto the playing field and was nervously awaiting the starting whistle when the band suddenly burst forth into our national anthem. A sea of silence swept over the cheering crowd as they rose in unison and turned toward the flag, rippling in the breeze. In the moment I looked up at the flag, a sincere feeling of great pride for my country rose within me. It was then that thoughts of things I held dear flashed vivid pictures across my excited mind, pictures of the rights and privileges that are found only in America; rights and privileges that have been defended on battlefields in every corner of the world; rights and privileges that I pray Almighty God will help us to preserve for the years to come.

How great it is to be an American!!

The Class Will

WE, the constituents of that august and revered body known colloquially as the Class of 1947, in a feeble attempt to requite the conscientious tutelage and vigilant guidance so cheerfully imparted by our erudite instructors do hereby bequeath the following:

To:—

Mr. Strout: An excuse for skipping school, like the students, to go fishing.

Miss Parker: A class of senior girls as reliable as those of 1947.

Mr. Goodwin: A lie detector to test the validity of the excuses he receives.

Mr. Moran: A class of A + Vocational students.

Miss Pfeiffer: A private secretary.

Mr. Conroy: Six dozen unbreakable test tubes, a broom, and a dust-pan.

Miss Kaliher: A different set of history charts for each class.

Coach Fox: A Donnie Troy in basketball.

Mr. Lynch: A private detective to solve "The Case of the Missing Faucet."

Mr. McKenna: A class of thirty Nancy Mays.

Mr. Geary: An electronic instrument to detect food hidden in pupils' pockets.

Mr. Hennessey: A gallon jar full of pickled paramecia.

Mr. C. McMahon: A No. 4 Gilbert chemistry set complete with microscope.

Miss Rhoades: An automatic pen that writes in Latin.

Mrs. Beahan: A noiseless typewriter.

Miss Enright: Someone who can speak shorthand.

Mr. Innis: A scholastic year with no cooperative tests.

Miss Daly: A method other than writing numerals for keeping silence in class.

Miss Bulger: A class of students who are really college material.

Mr. Davison: A blush-proof face powder.

Miss Madden: Unbreakable milk bottles.

Miss Prediger: A gold-framed picture of George Barrett.

Miss Jordan: A student who will do all the optionals in the geometry book.

Mr. Joyce: A job as "The Chief Announcer" at WBEC

Mr. Curtin: A year's course under Mr. Varga.

Mr. Ryan: A position as coach at Pittsfield High School.

Miss Hodges: A class of poetically talented pupils.

Mr. Massimiano: A book on Navy life.

Miss Morse: Appointment to be Pittsfield's delegate to the U. N.

Mr Herberg: Time to write a math book with comic illustrations.

Miss Frances Murphy: Our earnest desire that she may get to church on time Sunday mornings.

Miss Millet: One, just one, pupil who will understand the directions that she gives in French.

Mr. Gorman: Time to write his autobiography entitled, "When I Was a Lad."

The Junior Class: Our sincere hope that somehow they may possibly be able to fill our exalted places.

The Sophomore Class: The satisfaction of knowing that they will soon be able to look down on someone.

The Janitors: A device to lift the fog (???) that seems to settle in the boys' room after every period.

All the Boys: Exclusive clothes that girls won't wear.

All the Girls: Leg make-up that Miss Parker can't tell from stockings.

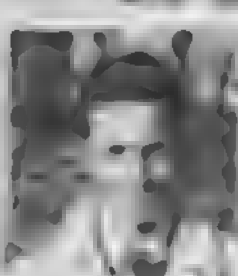

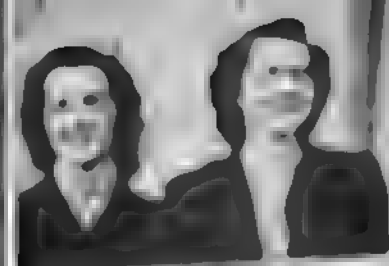

After due deliberation, we, the members of the Class of 1947, herewith affix our stamp of approval on this tenth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and forty-seven in the presence of the following witnesses:

Josephine

Richard Deadeye

Ralph Rackstraw

The History of the Class of 1947

AS man lengthens his records, perspectives steadily change. What was cherished as wisdom by our fathers is deemed folly by us; what is intensely momentous to us will be naive and banal to the next generation.

Gazing at the past, we fully realize that history is constantly relived, and we hasten to record our history, the spirit of our age—the stages through which our thoughts, our feelings, and our actions have passed—lest it be forgotten.

1944-1945

September 6 Six hundred sophomores ushered into a huge auditorium by half a dozen teachers.

September 7 Six hundred little sophomores—

September 8 Six hundred little and bewildered sophomores!

September 11 Let's see now, 11-20 24? No. 11-20-25? No. Open, Sesame??

September 25 Seniors eager to give the sophs "advice".

September 26—Sophomores are reluctant to accept the "advice". Do you blame us?

October 4 Puzzled soph: "Why are the gym doors labeled 'LOCKER ROOMS'?"

October 9 A more puzzled soph "Why is the tunnel labeled 'GYM'?"

October 10 Dramatic senior: "You don't know?"

November 1 Initiation for the "Y" clubs begins and many a soph is displaying a red face.

November 2 Tiny pigtails and enormous bows seem to be the current coiffure.

November 4 Kneesocks and socks—go together???

November 11 The librray has suddenly become popular with the sophomore girls.
Wonder why?

First report cards and the usual long way home.

Still recovering from the report card blues.

We start being good for dear old Santa.

"What shall I get for him?" seems to be the big question.

"Blue eyes, and please, Santa, try not to muss his beautiful blonde hair!"

"I resolve to keep the resolution that I resolve."

September 7 Little and bewildered sophomores pass once more through the portals of P. H. S., only now as dignified juniors.
 September 19 We were never so bad as the sophomores are this year.
 November 28 After much teasing we give up in despair. Mr. Cox just won't tell us how he makes things disappear!
 November 30—The P. H. S. band gets due recognition for its performance in the Halloween parade. Congratulations to them and to Mr. Gorman!
 December 10 The cafeteria loses its charm as the chemistry students discover nitrogen sulfide.
 December 19 An observant junior. Hubba! Hubba!
 January 1—The endless cycle. We make resolutions.
 January 2 -Yes, we break resolutions!
 February 8 Much waited for elections are here. President Martin Flynn
 February 14 Students find it hard to recognize friends in the operetta. It must be a newly discovered type of camouflage! With accents to boot!

H. M. S. Pinafore

ON January 30, 1947, Her Majesty's Ship "Pinafore" docked at the harbor of Pittsfield High School. Although its stay at our port was limited to two days, its presence attracted a large assemblage of spectators, as it did in '39 when it first dropped anchor at our shores.

With the ship came catchy tunes, witty sayings, and comedy which completely captivated its audience.

All present were greatly impressed with the colorful display of costumes and scenery. The score, too, was decidedly colorful, under the lively baton of our own inimitable Mr. F. Carl Gorman. To him the Senior Class wishes to express its appreciation and heartfelt gratitude for his aid in our production.

Congratulations to Kevin Phair and Marjorie Quillard, capable co-chairmen, who did such a splendid job of managing the ship's voyage; also, to Charlotte Eberwein, the concert mistress, and Jean Travers, the piano accompanist; to Mr. James Conroy, our class adviser; to the cast, the chorus, the orchestra, the staff, and the committees, without whose help "Pinafore" would not have been the huge success it was.

As dawn came on February 1 and the H. M. S. Pinafore slowly made its way out to sea, we were assured that its presence here would never be forgotten by the Class of '47.

The Junior Prom

Our First Big Moment!

OUR first real thrill! Junior Prom, May 25, 1946! Our hearts filled with ecstasy and excitement, we walked through the doors of the gym to the first gala event in our high school career.

Decorated with posters suggesting a circus, the gym burgeoned with crepe-paper streamers and balloons, while from the musicians' platform came the mellifluous rhythms of Larry Murphy's orchestra.

Thanks to the chairman, Donald Debacher, and his assisting committees, the Prom was a big success. Everyone there felt the gay spirit that was in the heart of each junior.

Basketball Review

PITTSFIELD High's 1946-47 basketball team won the tightly fought Northern Berkshire League and went on to win the Berkshire County Title. They won 17, lost 3, and had an .850 average.

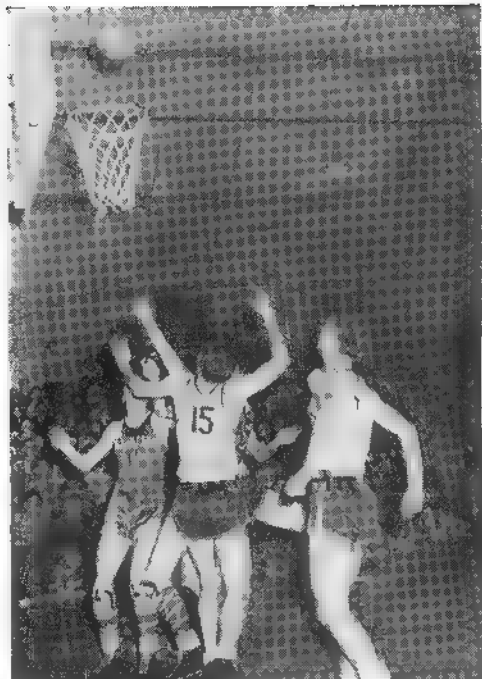

In the first three games Pittsfield lost two of the contests, including a one point decision to Adams. Spirits were low as the team sank to sixth place in the eight team League. But complete humiliation did not come until the team was forced into an overtime session to beat St. Joseph's High of North Adams.

The team began to play the type of ball it was capable of when it rolled over Dalton. Bennington was completely confused by the fast-weaving passing attack of Pittsfield. Williamstown found that their tricky pushes and sets could not match the now smooth-functioning Shire City team. Highly-rated Drury fell on their home court. League-leading Adams was snowed under before a packed house at the Armory. In a month, the team had climbed from sixth place to first. Now came the task of maintaining that lead.

The team was not to be stopped as it defeated Drury, St. Joseph's (P), and Williamstown. The county championship was won in two straight victories over Searles High of Great Barrington.

Congratulations are extended to Captain Armand Quadrozzi, who was tied for second in the League individual scoring race (Armand was an undisputed choice for the All-Berkshire team); also, to Pierce "Bus" Hayes, whose checking, interceptions, and passings were of an exceptional nature and led him to an All-Berkshire position. Credit is due to Center Art Ditmar, whose follow-ups and backboard coverage were necessary at all times. Art missed an All-Berkshire First Team selection by a nose. He was the team's second high scorer. Don Kasuba's backboard coverage was vital, and the steady team play of Captain-elect Bud Cauffman indispensable.

The season was highly successful and a real credit to the coaching and leadership of Coach Art Fox.

1947 Hockey Team

IN playing eight games this year the Pittsfield High hockey squad completed one of its heaviest schedules. The team won five games and lost three. It defeated Darrow twice, Lenox Prep twice, and Wilbraham Academy once. It lost to Holyoke, West Springfield, and Hampden High Schools.

The highlights of the season were the Hampden and Wilbraham contests. On the 20th of January Pittsfield journeyed to New Haven to participate in a double header at the arena. After putting up a valiant fight, Pittsfield was defeated 4 to 1 by Hampden High of New Haven. On February 14 Pittsfield went to the Springfield Coliseum to meet Wilbraham Academy. Trailing all the way, Pittsfield slammed in five goals in the final eight minutes to win in a blaze of glory, six to five.

Pittsfield used two teams throughout the season. The forward line was made up of Arpaente, Higgins, Troy, Ahlen, Fitch, Perry, Cheevers, and Wyble. The defensemen were Carmody, Flynn, Pellegrinelli, Zullo, and McCarron. Three goalies saw service. They were Barba, Parker, and Karaikewicz. Troy and Higgins were outstanding for the Purple throughout the entire season. Troy made 13 of the 24 goals scored by the team. Higgins was second in the scoring race and had the most assists.

Throughout the season the team was at a disadvantage because of their height and weight, but they always gave a good account of themselves.

The 1947 Ski Season

P. H. S. again captured the Buckeye Inter-School Ski Meet this year. In preparation for the 1947 ski season, all of the members of the team planned a promotional party. Aerie Gassellhead was a surprise, took first place in jumping, slalom, and cross-country, and with George Markwardt, a second place in slalom and first in cross-country.

In the New England Inter-School Ski Contest at Exeter, N. H., P. H. S. faced against excellent schools. All of the competitors against superior teams did their best. P. H. S. did well in jumping and cross-country.

The 1947 Track Season

P. H. S. started off the 1947 track season by bowing to Berkshire School 27-77, and shortly afterward a mere point gave a meet to Tech High of Springfield, the score being 50-49. Then Pittsfield's tracksters apparently found their pace and defeated Drury 81-23.

In the Western Massachusetts Track Meet at Springfield, Pittsfield was runner-up. This was a very successful meet for the green P. H. S. track team. Strong in the field but weak on the track, Pittsfield ranked high through the prowess of Jack Fitch, who competed and won despite a sore leg, and helped Pittsfield to gain ground on Classical.

The five "specialists" of Coach Carmody's team made the trip to Boston to compete and qualify for the New England Championships. The five men—Don Debacher, Don DiCenzo, Lee Stack, Isaiah Petruzella, and Lauriston Gale—made a good showing as all five placed and received awards. They will now compete in the New England Championship, June 14. With the ending of the school year, Coach Carmody's boys have had a successful season in four regular meets and two invitation meets.

1947 BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS

Girls' Basketball

HAVING lost the 1946 basketball tournament by such a close point, the Girls of 1947 entered this year's tournament with the shift in their favor. They did not lose a game until they met the visiting team from the state capital. In this semi-final game, the team displayed excellent teamwork against the capital and won handsily 30 to 16. Playing a slightly looser ball, slightly less accurately, however, in the final, the responsibility was on the junior 28 to 14 in the second and final meeting of the season. In the final game of the season against the champions, the Class of '47 represented some Saturday in the first half but in the final quarter they found the game and won by a 21 to 16 score. Rosemary Dwyer and Barbara Kinsman, both outstanding defenders, dominating play on making the interceptions and Milly Harris scored in the second by scoring 29 points throughout the tournament.

1947 GIRLS' VOLLEYBALL CHAMPIONS

Front Row: Marilyn Butler, Barbara Komaricki, Marjorie Quillard, Lorraine Harford, Rita Kushi
Back Row: Margaret Barnes, Beth Harrington, Patricia O'Hearn, Barbara Howell, Margaret Behan,
 Dorothy Prendergast

Volleyball

AS sophomores the 1947 volleyball team defeated the juniors, as juniors they vanquished both seniors and sophomores, as mighty seniors they lived up to their precedent by again winning the volleyball tournament.

Every game of the final year was close and full of excitement. The sophomores were strong opponents, but the spirit shown by the invincible seniors made them come out of each game victorious.

The excellent sportsmanship displayed by all three classes can be largely attributed to their instructor, Miss Helen McNaughton, who has aided the girls in every way and to whom the Class of '47 is exceedingly grateful.

Bowling

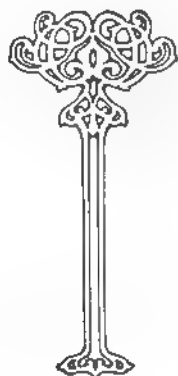

AS usual this past winter a record number of girls pursued the enjoyment of America's most popular sport. As the season progressed, it became evident that the halls of P. H. S. harbored a large number of fine young bowlers. This was proved in the annual singles tournament which concluded the season. In the preliminaries twelve girls qualified for the finals, six of whom, Ann Helliwell, 1946 winner; Barbara Komuniecki, Mary McCarthy, Mildred Barnes, Barbara Helliwell, and Eleanor Quinn were members of the Class of '47. In the finals, however, the underclassmen harried the seniors until everfaithful Barbara Komuniecki posted a ringing 101, which, coupled with an 80, gave her the championship.

Congratulations to a great champion!

To THE GIRL WHO SEEKS A FUTURE

...

We are interested in sitting down and talking with a girl like you. We should like to help you find your future—a happy prosperous future—in Beauty Culture. Maybe you didn't know it, but right here in your own community, you can learn the world-renowned Marinello System of Beauty

Culture. Thousands of girls have had to travel from far-away places for this valuable training. But you can have it right here.

Come in. Let us tell you all about this famous method which fits you for a fascinating profession and prepares you to earn a high salary—in good times or bad. If you can't come in, drop us a line asking for complete information. No obligation, of course. But we advise you to act quickly.

Trusses fitted by experienced operators. Consultation at any time but fitting done by appointment only—except in Emergency. A case may be simple or it may present time consuming difficulties. Either type merits the undivided attention of the fitter and the unhurried time of both wearer and fitter. The truss should not cause its wearer appreciable discomfort which, if present, usually indicates faulty fitting or the use of an unsuitable model. Such a condition should be promptly corrected as an incorrectly fitted truss may do more harm than good. For maximum protection a truss should be replaced within two years. Advice and adjustments are yours for the asking. We make no charge beyond the initial cost of the appliance which in single trusses regularly stocked ranges from $3.50-$10 and in double trusses from $6.50-$18. Replacement parts are at catalog prices and special design models according to manufacturers' quotations.

Other surgical appliances: Elastic-abdominal post operation, sacro-iliac-ptosis (fallen stomach), obesity and abhoric supporters. Elastic stockings, knee caps, anklets, writers, stretcher bandages (non-elastic), shoulder braces.

To alleviate the distresses and to contribute to the comfort and recovery of the unfortunate ill, we offer a large and complete stock of sickroom supplies—rubber sheeting (double coated), bed pans, invalid cushions, water bottles, heating pads (electric as available), fountain syringes and combinations, ear and ulcer, infant, youth, and adult bulb, nasal and whirling spray syringes, clinical thermometers, throat and spinal ice-bags and caps, urinals, sputum cups, rectal and colon tubes, etc. Nasal and throat atomizers, nebulizers, vaporizers, insufflators, electric inhalers, First Aid kits, sterile cotton, gauze bandages, adhesives, etc.

Baby foods, supplies, and accessories.

Pet foods and supplies for bird or animal. Sargent's, Ranger, Pulox, Rex Hunters, Delereo, etc.

Photography supplies—films, developing chemicals, contact and enlarging papers (scarce), cutting boards, projector bulbs, photo floods, movies, viewers, darkroom outfits, flash pans, etc.

Remington electric shavers, men's supplies, cosmetics—exclusive Morningside distributors of Old South, Aujous Devastating, Yardley of London, Anita of Paris, Almay.

To Graduates:

If you could live and work
ANY PLACE IN THE WORLD
... where would it be?

The pioneer spirit is not dead.

Only the goals are changed.

Today men seek not gold or free land but the GOOD LIFE.

And many are finding it in Western Massachusetts.

Some of these modern pioneers will start their own business. Some will work in stores, others in factories. Some will be teachers, some will be mechanics, some will be farmers.

All can live in a "climate" of good government, good schools, and good neighbors, linked to the rest of the world by modern highways, railroads, and airways.

All can enjoy the hills and valleys, the rivers and streams of Western Massachusetts—a region where every season brings new satisfactions out-of-doors.
